About Wentworth Falls.

Wentworth Falls is a town located in the beautiful Blue Mountains region of New South Wales. This historic town is named after the triple-tiered, 100m high Wentworth Falls, which display the breath-taking natural grandeur of the Blue Mountains. The town's elevated position also enables an incredible view out across the Jamison Valley. Wentworth Falls is the perfect destination for anyone who loves bushwalking, hiking, and exploring, as the town is the base for numerous tracks that wind up through the mountains, towards sheltered picnic and barbecue grounds, scenic lookouts, lakes, and waterfalls.

On the Charles Darwin walk, visitors can even follow in the footsteps of the famous natural historian, who toured the area in 1836. Wentworth falls has a rich and fascinating history that predates Victorian exploration; in the south-east of the town there is an area of great cultural and archaeological significance, referred to as Kings Tableland, which contains an important aboriginal site: a meeting place that was used for over 22 000 years, sacred to the Gundungurra, Darug, and Wiradjuri people. With its many historic inns, prominent Victorian architecture, cosy B&Bs, cafes, restaurants, markets, and galleries, Wentworth Falls retains a vibrant culture, and a lively and welcoming atmosphere, perfect for anyone looking to enjoy the seclusion and serenity of Australia's wilderness, without the isolation.
